

Hello, I'm Claudia.

Welcome to my online portfolio.

I am a Graphic Designer based in the Chicago area and have been working as an Art Director in the corporate office of the national furniture and housewares retailer, Crate and Barrel, since 2009.

I also take on freelance graphic design projects for all kinds of organizations and businesses.

My design career began at CNN en Español on an animation graphics design team that was assembled in 1996 to launch the Spanish-language sister of the pioneering cable news network. I was still a student at the Portfolio Center, a specialized design school in Atlanta, and it was an exciting time that got me grounded in working under pressure, on deadline, all while creating with innovation and accuracy.

Then, I moved to Chicago in 2000 to pursue a career in print design. My portfolio includes work representing a variety of design forms—from website design to broadcast animation.

I am especially passionate about the creation and redesign of logos and have helped launch dozens of brands and start-ups.

Because I am multilingual, I am able to work on projects in Spanish and Italian, as well as English.
